A group of autoworkers are in the 3rd week of a hunger strike against GM's inhumane treatment of employees at an assembly plant in Bogota, Colombia. Hundreds were severely injured at work, then illegally fired and left to a system rigged to deny workers' comp.

They've peacefully protested in front of the US Embassy for almost 1000 days. The workers and their families have nothing but their will to fight for workplace justice at GM, and for all workers.

The workers at the GM plant have been driven to undertaking a hunger strike until death to achieve their just demands. They deserve strong and active support to help them attain their rights.

GM knows it robbed them of their ability to work, but offered them just 18 months' wages to go away. GM didn't reckon with all the support the Colombians have receive from rank and file workers and solidarity activists here in the USA!

Let GM know how you feel. Visit the website www.asotrecol.org to find out how, or send a text to 23559 with the message: "@gmsettlenow" to get connected.

GM MUST SETTLE NOW!

Whether in the U.S. or overseas, when General Motors contracts workers, they legally and morally agree to treat their workers in a decent and humane fashion.

The dignity of the human person requires no less. General Motors needs to provide just compensation to those whose work has built their vehicles. I implore GM to restart good faith negotiations with the ASOTRECOL workers.

I believe in workers rights both here at home and abroad.

That is why I am standing in solidarity with Colombian GM workers on strike.

I support Jorge Parra and ASOTRECOL in their effort to meet with GM to resolve injustices which he and his co-workers experienced at GM Colombia.

I call on justice-loving people every where to stand with me and call on GM to do better. Spread the word. With our support, they can win this fight.
